

CHARLES J. CONNICK : DESIGNER AND WORKER IN STAINED AND LEADED GLASS : NINE HARCOURT STREET, BOSTON, MASSACHUSETTS

City or Town ^{West} East Orange New Jersey State No. 764

Church of the Holy Innocents Date of Completion June 15
Donor and Address

Architect Quality of Glass
Denomination and Minister

Footage 40 sq ft ~~Sight~~ ^{sight} ~~fall~~

Ventilators none Set by Position in Church Chancel

Height from floor Protection Glass ~~Grease~~ ~~Stone~~
Rabbit Wood

Points of compass
Quality of light late sunlight - about 11 shaded

Inscription *"The Path of the just is as the shining light that shineth more and more unto the perfect day" **
Design wanted

Shipping address Staging
Blue-prints
Received

★ 1st LANCET 2ND LANCET 3RD LANCET
IN MEMORY OF ANNIE DUNTON AND JAMES McCULLOUGH FARR GIVEN BY THEIR SONS, 1921

Bill to Templets

Photos of Cartoons Mailed

General Information The window over the altar will not be enlarged.

Date of installation should be on the window

Burdick's letter

"I think the text in Proverbs 4:18 is a most appropriate one, and I myself prefer the King James version 'The path of the just' etc. as being familiar to all, the word 'just' such a fine word, strong and embodying a shade of meaning no other word has, one of the attributes of God, Himself, and applicable to your mother and father, and taken from the translation they loved.

"The path of the just is as the shining light that shineth more and more unto the perfect day"

* Inscription in letter of March 14 - "In memory of Annie Dunton and James McCullough Farr by their sons."

For addresses of those to be notified as window progresses, see other side.