"The Healing Christ"

"Incident such as St. Matthew suggests in 12th chapter and 15th verse..."

The arrangement I have in mind is one including children, and I should have Christ in the centre panel, holding a child in His arms in an attitude of kindliness and sympathy. Whole atmosphere of group should be one of joy rather than of suffering, and avoid any painful reminders of infirmity or illness. Suggest the presence of sickness in as simple a manner as possible.

Dr. Cross thinks this should indicate the incident as clearly as the Gethsemane and Resurrection windows, and should unmistakably offer the occasions of Christ's Healings. Dr. Cross thinks that there is some danger of carrying out a monotonous treatment of the figure of Christ in the central panels on the windows on this side. (over)

For addresses of those to be notified as window progresses, see other side.
Perhaps if Christ were turned to one side in this window it would help.

The new arrangement for the ecclesiastical South aisle windows in this church according to Dr. Cross' letter of January 27, 1921 is as follows:

1. Nearest west Nativity.
2. Christ and Disciples in Temple.
3. The Healing Christ.
4. Gethsemane
5. Resurrection.
