"Makes the suggestion that the main business of my Father's life-pastor and scholar-might be more prominent. But of course the tools of earth and sea are pleasanter to "do". There is something opposite the pine tree which I don't make out, perhaps that beloigs with the book.

We neither of us like the lettering at the bottom: backsward both guide word & names being enclosed with the seem to make that vignette of more consequence than the others, whereas really names and words belong with the whole of the window. Then too, we do not like the breaking into the circle (Vaughan) or the strewing about of the words with the lines of the decoration. The size of the letters of the two names might be diminished. Really of course the Gardiners should apply to Caroline Vaughan as well as to Frederic (according to old fashioned marking C.V. F.) but this may be difficult to manage.

The whole effect of the sketch is blue, This may be intentional, or it may be because the sketch is so small the other colors cannot be given their full tone.

Could not the lettering of Alfred and Hilda be made smaller?
