General Information Subject: Jesus and the Doctors in one; and Jesus Blessing Children in the other.

These two panels at present cast light through the narthex screen. These should be treated something like the narthex in Knoxville in fine detail.

None of these windows should be too dark - fairly light, but colorful.

Mr. Dittman says, "I do not believe these windows should be as heavily figured as the ones in the Chapel."

For addresses of those to be notified as window progresses, see other side.

The two windows in the narthex, devoted to the Young Christ with the Doctors in the Temple, and Blessing Little Children. ...They have been kept light and brilliant, to admit an abundance of illumination to the narthex.
