General Information: The Prodigal Son, returning to the father. (The father taking the son's hand in welcome).
South Transept Window.

The smaller window in the south transept is devoted to Our Lord's parable of the Prodigal Son. In the dominant medallion the forgiving Father takes the hand of the returned prodigal welcoming him home.

Symbols through the field suggest preparations for the feast and the bringing of the fatted calf and above, the swine which the repentant son had lately tended. The swine which the repentant son had lately tended are suggested above.

Again, an abundance of white and light colors assure a brilliant though colorful window.

At the base is the text, "My son was dead, and is come to life".

Father Clavin would like the incidental work at the bottom of this window eliminated and have the figures enlarged so that they might be better read from the floor, and that the inscription should be changed to "This my son who was lost is found."

The figure composition of the south transept window devoted to the Prodigal Son has been enlarged and the text changed.
