General Information To be designed something along the lines of the windows in the Presbyterian Hospital, New York. They also like the chancel reredos window at Northminster Presbyterian Church, Evanston, and the simple window with the Descending Dove at First Presbyterian Church, Evanston.

They thought the windows should be somewhat lighter than the Presbyterian Hospital and perhaps not quite as light as the First Presbyterian, but that general type, without any ecclesiastic symbol.

Make typical color sketch for one.

For prices on other windows, see report of October 22, 1958.

*Note. They have made provision for temporary glass, so we do not have to keep out the weather. 4/8/59.
