(Right panel: (Revelation 1:19)

Follow me and I will make you fishers of men. Woman, behold thy son! I beheld my mother!
As planned, the clerestory window is devoted to Saint John the Divine. He is represented in the dominant central medallion on the Island of Patmos writing his Revelations. Above is a vision of the Church clothed as a bride descending from Heaven.

His calling is recorded at the left. Our Lord stands on the shore and beckons to James and John. Their father, Zebedee, has not yet left the boat.

At the right he cares for Mary according to Our Lord's wish.

The suggested text is from Saint John's Revelation;—
"Behold the tabernacle of God is with men...he shall dwell with them and they shall be His people".

The design is planned to harmonize with and complement the present windows.
