General Information: To have the Four Evangelists, Matthew, Mark, Luke and John.
We have completed our study for the two pair of narthex windows and are sending you the rough color sketches, herewith.

As planned, they are devoted to the Evangelists, Matthew, Mark, Luke and John.

They all carry the Evangelistic book and pen, and are accompanied by their traditional symbols. The winged Man holds the ink pot for Saint Matthew, the winged Lion rests at the feet of Saint Mark, as does the winged Ox with Saint Luke. In the field is the Caduceus suggesting the tradition that he was a physician. Saint John is accompanied by his Eagle, and the chalice and serpent recalling the incident of the poisoned cup from which he drank unharmed.

The colors, especially in the field, are kept fairly light to admit an abundance of illumination to the narthex.

Note: Keep figures on small side.

Important: WARM UP Canon Tarbell would like "the St. Luke and St. John panels warmed up a little." (Strengthen the warm colors in these two panels).
