

EXCHEQUER

Wolcott A. Hokanson first surveyed this campus from the top of the Great Dome. It was a Sunday afternoon in 1915, and Wally and the other messenger from Boston Tech had come to see their new place of business. They'd climbed straight to the top. Suddenly President Maclaurin's big limousine pulled up on Memorial Drive. While the boys watched, he and his guests got out and strode down the Great Court, Dr. Maclaurin gesturing with both hands for MIT's young employees to come down. They fled.

Since that time, Mr. Hokanson has had a view of the Court from almost every office in his area, as he steadily advanced from office boy and general clerk to Bursar.

Come June 30 he'll be the only man now on the staff to complete 50 full-time years at MIT and retire at the age of 65. He has served under Presidents Maclaurin, Nichols, Samuel Stratton, Compton, Killian and J.A. Stratton.

Since 1954, he's been responsible for re-

HIGH FI

MIT's latest experimental communications satellite may not rival the glamour of Early Bird, but it's making important technical contributions to solving special problems of military communications, where reliability takes precedence over live TV. The (L)incoln (E)xperimental (S)atellite, LES-2, was carried up on May 6 by a Titan III-A from Cape Kennedy. Along with LES-2, the Titan payload also contained a second satellite called the Lincoln Calibration Sphere. Both the LCS and the LES were placed in orbit right on cue and are doing a perfect job -- to the joy of the Space Techniques and Equipment Group (63) which created them; and the Surface Techniques and Equipment Group (62) which has been "using" them from Millstone Hill in Westford, Mass., and Camp Parks in Pleasanton, Calif.

LES-2's predecessor, LES-1, which went up in February, is also operating well. All these satellites are part of an Air Force-sponsored program at Lincoln aimed at providing better means for fast, dependable, long-distance military space communications.

In a basic sense, LES-2 does the same job as Early Bird; it receives a signal from the earth, amplifies and returns it (transponds). But LES has the first all-solid-state (transistors, semi-conductors, etc.) communications transponder to operate solely on X-band (8,000 Mcps) frequencies. Test signals, speech and even music have been transmitted from Westford and Pleasanton via this satellite. ("Ride of the Valkyries" is traditional Lincoln fare for christening new communications systems.)

LCS is a perfect sphere, 44 1/2" in diameter and made of aluminum, for use as a test target. Because of its exactly spherical shape -- unlike all other satellites now in orbit -- it produces steady radar echoes of uniform strength. It will be used as a primary standard for measuring the sensitivity of powerful radar and radio systems with unprecedented accuracy, an important contribution to space surveillance, re-entry measurements and radar astronomy.

Lincoln's Andy Howitt (Group 71) gave pre-launch check-out to LES-1

CHARTER FLIGHTS

MIT summer charter flights to Europe are open for more passengers. Everyone in the MIT Community (and families) is eligible. Sponsored by Technology Student Enterprises, Inc., the round-trip flights, New York to London, will be on turboprop Britannias of British Eagle Airways. The so-called 12-week flight will leave on June 17 and return Sept. 14; price is $278 round-trip. The 5-week, June 27-July 29 trip costs $265.

According to TSE advisor Dean Jacoby, the flight schedule is firm, whether or not more people sign up. For those interested, the TSE office extension is 2924; if no one is there, try 864-3194.

HERE AND THERE

On May 10 at the Faculty Club, the MIT Dames held their annual banquet. The Mrs. James R. Jack Award for Dame of the Year was presented to Suzanne Bush (Mrs. Richard W.) whose husband is a DSR staff member. The award, named for a founder of the club, is given to the young lady who has contributed most during the year.

A series of eight tennis classes, sponsored by the Athletic Department starts today (June 2). Beginners' group will be held from 12:15-1 p.m. and intermediate from 5:15 to 6 p.m. Fee is $10 plus the Athletic Card. For more information, call Instructor Vincent Eldred, at Ext. 4498.

Freshman Hesh Wiener and his staff of university students last week published "CAN Magazine." Containers for "the first magazine in a can" came from American Can Co.; red and white labels from the same printer who did the literary magazine inside. The boys themselves sealed the product with equipment at a nearby cat food company. For his own convenience, Wiener totes "CAN" around in a 6-pack.

For several years, members of an Army reserve unit, the 1001st Research and Development Group, have met at MIT. Programs enable them to keep up-to-date in R&D activities and they meet during the academic year only. Winding up their schedule for '64-'65: A June 3 session in Room 4-250; and on June 17, a 6 p.m. dinner meeting at the Faculty Club. If anyone would like additional information about the group, call Dennis Scolamiero (IL), Ext. 30545.

ceipt of all funds and disbursement of all Institute payments. Mr. Hokanson is fond of saying that he came right from grammar school to college and stayed. When he was hired at 15 to run errands between the various MIT buildings in Boston, he was required to help his family; his father had died when Wally was 7. Among other duties, he sold "The Tech" for 5 cents in Rogers Bldg. lobby between classes; and he recalls he and another boy assigned to dust Huntington Hall regularly played catch until the head janitor checked up on them.

In addition to his work as MIT's fourth Bursar, Mr. Hokanson has had many responsibilities. Since 1937 he has been assistant treasurer of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences; and, from its establishment, of the Atoms for Peace Awards, Inc. He was an officer of the early Employees Mutual Benefit Association, a member of the Safety Committee and willing advisor to "accountants" in many fraternities and other student groups.

One of the founders here of the first college DeMolay Chapter in the world, Wally has been Dad Advisor and treasurer of their Advisory Board since 1952. He's a past master of the Richard C. Maclaurin Masonic Lodge and secretary since 1933. For years he has been an honorary member of the MIT Class of 1923 -- his year, had he been able to go to college -- and of the MIT Alumni Association.

Mrs. Hokanson, a member of the Treasurer's staff since 1945, will retire this June, also; and they'll live in Deerfield, N.H. They have two sons: Herbert, purchasing agent of Documat Co. in Waltham; and W.A. Hokanson, Jr., once bursar and now executive secretary of Bowdoin College; and are proud grandparents of eight grandchildren.

On June 8, in recognition of their service to the Institute, there will be a reception for the Hokansons from 4:30- 6 p. m. in Kresge Lobby. Their many friends at MIT are invited.

OUTGOING

The Commencement countdown has started. Over in Rockwell Cage workmen have already put up the stage, bandstand and drapes. When the Chapel bell rings on June 11, over 1,000 gowned seniors and graduate students will start their academic procession, followed by the faculty, through an audience of parents and friends.

President Stratton will give the Commencement address again this year and continue a tradition of personally presenting diplomas to each degree winner. Dr. Killian will preside at the exercises.

Another busy man at Commencement will be Marshal of the Graduates Ross Smith (Director of Athletics). With selected departmental aides and assistant marshals and a card file, it's his responsibility to make sure each graduate is in the right spot in line. Just one switch and everyone would get the wrong diploma.

Preceding the big day: Military commissioning exercises on Thursday morning and a Graduation Eve party which the seniors have planned for their guests.

This year, when parents leave the Cage on their way to lunch and the President's reception, they'll walk on a brand new mall running between Briggs Field House and the Student Center. To allow this, a section of the construction fence will be removed. Outside du Pont's entrance, a brick terrace has been set down; the wide walk itself has an attractive washed concrete finish. Two sets of stairs lead up to Kresge Plaza. Also on the scene: A 25' Katsura tree which was transplanted from a row near Westgate.
