

FIRM BASIS

Forty-five of the 7,000 students enrolling at MIT next week will know more about Boston than many Bostonians do. They have been participating in BASIS (Boston Area Seminar for International Students), a program designed to acquaint newly arrived foreign students with many aspects of American life.

Now in its third year, BASIS is supported largely by the Ford Foundation and is co-sponsored by BU, BC, Brandeis, Harvard and MIT. The 125 students attending BASIS represent 47 countries in every corner of the world; almost all will attend New England colleges this year.

A 6-week BASIS program provides solid groundwork in speaking and writing English for those who will be using it extensively for the first time. For students already proficient in English, a 3-week program is offered. Both groups attend daily seminars in areas of special interest, ranging from nuclear physics to music. Evening lectures by local authorities introduce the students to a variety of other American topics, including politics, civil rights and dating practices.

Highlights of BASIS informal events have included a swimming party at Crane's Beach and a scavenger hunt to acquaint the newcomers with the MBTA. Dancing and typing classes, suggested by the students themselves, were incorporated into the program. Richard McDowell, assistant to the Dean of Student Affairs, is assistant director of this year's BASIS program, and more than a dozen others from MIT have contributed to the lectures and seminars.

SHEDDING NEW LIGHT

During the summer, electricians and painters have been brightening up Hayden Gallery. A new ceiling has been installed with flush ceiling lights and traveling spotlights to accent individual works of art, and the entire gallery has been repainted.

An exhibit of "Ten Contemporary Indian Painters" will open in the refurbished gallery next Tuesday (Sept. 14) and continue through October 10. The ten young artists come from all areas of India and represent both realistic and abstract schools. The paintings, all oil-on-canvas, are at MIT in an exclusive American showing and are available for sale. Gallery hours are 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday-Friday, and 1-5 p.m. weekends.

Discussing a design by their future teacher, Prof. Eduardo Catalano, are clockwise: Fred Gordon, Chicago, BASIS graduate assistant; Gloria Lozano-Barcala, Argentina; Matti Sauria, Finland; Wayne Thurman, MIT, architecture seminar leader; Gajinder Singh, India; and Michio Ando, Japan.

ANOTHER WORLD SERIES?

Yes, indeed. This one ended the season of the Instrumentation Lab Lunchtime League. Round robin preliminary games eliminated all but two of the 15 teams. Pitted against each other for the final were the Numb Nine and the Gyro Assembly teams. Gyro Assembly emerged victorious with a heartbreaking score: 4 to 3.

It's a hit for Gyro team manager Vern Assarian.

LIS REGISTRATION

Tuition-free Lowell Institute School, which offers two-year mechanical and electrical courses, announces that the entrance examination for first year students will be held next Monday night (Sept. 13). Those interested in entering LIS should file applications with Dr. F. L. Foster, director of the school (Rm. 5-111), as soon as possible.

Students wishing to take second-year courses are requested to submit transcripts of their grades along with applications. LIS also offers supplementary courses for its graduates and others with proper preparation. Applications for a course in Differential Equations (beginning Sept. 29) are due by Monday, Sept. 20.

LIS is conducted by the Lowell Institute Foundation under the auspices of MIT. Evening classes are held at MIT for persons employed in industry who desire to advance their technical education. A registration fee of $5 per term is required.

USAF Chief of Staff Gen. John P. McConnell congratulating Prof. Winston R. Markey.

MARKEY MAKES MARK

Back as director of the Experimental Astronomy Lab is Prof. Winston R. Markey (Aero) after a year in Washington as chief scientist of the U.S. Air Force. Before leaving Washington, he received the Exceptional Civilian Service Award, highest given by the Air Force, for his outstanding achievements while serving in the post. The citation accompanying the award stated that "his complete devotion to the nation's welfare will be reflected in the qualitative superiority of future weapons of the free world."

HERE AND THERE

Once each year those who do not have Blue Cross-Blue Shield coverage are given an opportunity to enroll. Information about the plan and application cards for enrolling are available in the Office of Personnel Relations (Rm. E19-230, Ext. 4271). The deadline for applying is Sept. 24.

Tuning up for another year of Music at MIT are the various musical organizations, open to all community members who are competent and interested in performing. Choral Society will begin at 7:30 Monday evening (Sept. 20); the MIT Symphony at 7:30 Tuesday evening, (Sept. 21), both in Kresge Auditorium. If you cannot attend the first rehearsal, but are interested in joining, get in touch with the music office (Ext. 3210) to arrange for an audition.

Gone from Bldg. 10 to its new offices in Daggett is the familiar complex of the Bursar's Office. But its general services to the Institute remain unchanged: checks may be cashed, Institute bills paid and travelers' checks bought at the window in 10-180, as well as in Daggett. As soon as space is ready, the Bursar's Office will open a branch in the Student Center to handle these transactions and the Student Bank as well. Salary and other checks, previously available in Rm. 4-103 may be picked up at 10-180. Friday payday operations are the same as before.

Community members with dramatic inclinations are invited to attend the first meeting of the Community Players on Tuesday evening (Sept. 21) in the Faculty Club. A social hour will begin at 6, followed by dinner at 7 and the meeting at 8. For reservations, call Ext. 2910.

New Institute Organist, John Cook

NEW FACE

Presiding over the 3,677 pipes in the organs of Kresge and the Chapel is John Cook, new Institute organist and lecturer in music in the Dept. of Humanities. He will arrange the series of concerts given by major visiting organists in Kresge and the Sunday afternoon recitals in the Chapel. He will also be available to provide or advise on music for those who have reserved the Chapel for weddings.

Mr. Cook, a native of England, comes to MIT with a varied background as composer, conductor and performer. For two years he conducted the Old Vic Theatre Co. orchestra. He has written scores for 13 productions of the Shakespearean Festival at Stratford, Ont., and a number of works for organ and choir. Before coming to Boston three years ago as organist at the Church of the Advent, he had been organist and choirmaster in churches in Stratford-upon-Avon, England, and in London, Ontario.

SORRY, NEW NUMBER

During the coming weekend, approximately 800 Institute telephone extensions will be changed. The last remaining 3-digit numbers -- 100's and 700's -- will become 4-digits and the 30 series at Instrumentation Lab will also become standard 4-digit numbers. Mail Service from Physical Plant will deliver new telephone directories, reflecting the changes, beginning on Monday, Sept. 13. Meanwhile, general guidelines to the changes are as follows:

100's	Civil Engineering, Industrial Management	7100's
100's	Naval Architecture, Mathematics	4300's
700's	Biology, Modern Languages, Physical Plant, Admissions, Registrar's Office	4700's
30,000's	Instrumentation Laboratory	1000's

Beginning Monday, the information number at the switchboard will be 30. The switchboard cannot connect an Institute caller to the extension he wants. After obtaining the correct extension number from information, hang up and dial the extension.
