MEET THE PRESS

In a fine spirit of cooperation the MIT Press and the Coop have banded together to present the first MIT Authors' Day luncheon and reception on Thursday (May 5) in the Student Center. The luncheon, beginning at 12:15 in the Sala de Puerto Rico, features three speakers familiar to the Institute and Press: Prof. Paul A. Samuelson on "The Scientists Take Over," Dean Emeritus John E. Burchard on "Rebuilding Germany: Tradition or Redemption," and Prof. Elting Morison on "Progress and Pain!" All three have books recently published or forthcoming from the Press.

Coffee will be served at a reception in the exhibition area of the Coop following the luncheon. Displays have been arranged featuring Press books and authors, including a large serigraph of the late Norbert Wiener -- still a best selling author -- and the original manuscript of his "Cybernetics." At a special sale, purchasers of Press books will receive a free MIT paperback of their own choosing, equal to the purchase price.

The MIT Press has outgrown three offices in the past five years and now is pushing at the sides of spacious quarters on the seventh floor of Daggett. Since becoming an independent publisher only three years ago under the direction of Carroll Bowen, the Press has emerged as one of the top ten university presses in the nation.

Known as the Technology Press until 1961, the Press already had a long history as a leading publisher of scientific and technological books. The interests of the Press have become broader in recent years. Nearly 100 new books will be published this year, with such diverse titles as "Generalized Thermodynamics," "Percentage Baseball," "Differential Space, Quantum Systems, and Prediction," and "The Cultural Frontiers of the Peace Corps."

Although it got off to a late start in the paperback field, the Press this spring added ten new ones to its list, bringing the total to fifty titles in paperback. Most paperbacks are also available in hard cover as well.

It takes several months for an accepted manuscript to travel through the Press and make its appearance as a book. During this time, editors check and re-check to see that the manuscript remains correct, production people plan what the finished book will look like, and promotion and sales staff arrange publicity and distribution to be sure that potential readers know about the book and can get it.

Nearly half of the manuscripts accepted by the Press come from within MIT. In these years of rapidly changing technology, MIT Press books have a surprising survival rate. Of more than 400 published since the Press began in 1926, only about 35 have gone out of print. One of these, "Problems in Atomic Dynamics," by Max Born--the first book ever published by the Press--was an immediate sell-out when a printer came across a cache of 200 copies a couple of years ago.

PROGRAM NOTE

The curtain parts on a young pirate, just released from his apprenticeship, taking his first good look at the world around him. From there on it's melody and gay confusion as the Gilbert and Sullivan Society presents "The Pirates of Penzance," in Kresge tomorrow, Friday and Saturday (April 21-23). In the cast are employees Lori Edwards, secretary to Dr. Walter Koltun, and Herb Meily of Lincoln Lab. Nancy Ellen Fitch of Graphic Arts is director and John Ranier of Civil Engineering is musical director. Tickets, at $1.50, may be reserved at Ext. 2910.

Artist's drawing of the new Center for Advanced Engineering Study.

A few students have already benefitted from this program, but the new building will make it possible to accommodate up to 100 each year.

Architecturally blending with its neighbors, the limestone and glass building will rise five stories, with a sixth-floor tower housing individual studies. All floors except the first and sixth will be connected by ramps and staircases to Bldgs. 7 and 33, and an enclosed bridge from the second, third and fourth floors will connect with the Bush Building.

Funds for building and operating the Center have been provided by grants from the Alfred P. Sloan Foundation and the federal Office of Education. Architects are Skidmore, Owings & Merrill of Chicago, who were also responsible for the design of the Bush Building and the now-rising Center for Space Studies.

ADVANCEMENT

Come the summer of 1967, the Institute's facade along Massachusetts Avenue will be solid. Construction has started on a handsome new Center for Advanced Engineering Study which will link Bldgs. 7 and 33.

The new building will house facilities for keeping the working engineer up-to-date in his field despite the explosion of technological knowledge. In the new Practicing Engineer Advanced Study Program, engineers and scientists out of school for five years or more may return to campus for as much as a full academic year to catch up with new develop-

Dr. Stratton posed during the winter for sculptress Beatrice Paipert whose work is now on display in the Faculty Club. Other familiar faces in the exhibit: Jeff Wylie and the late Norbert Wiener.

ACCOUNTABLE

The MIT Credit Union accounts ending in 2 and 3 have been audited and verified as of March 31, 1966. Joseph Cullinan, Chairman of the CU Supervisory Committee, urges members to return the confirmation notices as soon as possible. If your account number ends in 2 or 3 and you have not received a confirmation notice, please notify Mr. Cullinan at the Payroll Office, Rm. E19-515 or Ext. 4491. Federal regulations require that CU accounts be audited periodically, and the Supervisory Committee does a group each quarter.

HAVING W-4 TROUBLE?

Just after the Payroll Offices sent everyone a letter explaining the new income tax withholding system, John Little, Associate Comptroller, received the following official notice from the Internal Revenue Service, quoted in full:

"A new system of withholding will be used to deduct federal income tax from your pay effective May 1, 1966.

"This is not a tax increase but is a new system to make withholding come closer to your actual tax. It will relieve many taxpayers of the problem of having to pay large amounts with their annual income tax returns. Also, it will reduce over-withholding for many other taxpayers.

"The amount of tax withheld from your wages now depends on whether you are single or married as well as the number of exemptions you claim on Form W-4. Married persons must file a new Form W-4 to obtain correct withholding under the new system.

"Single persons, including unmarried Heads of Household, can help assure the correct withholding by filing a new Form W-4."

For those having trouble deciding about filing a new Form W-4, the several Payroll Offices have government Document No. 5642 available. Time is of the essence since new W-4's must be in the Payroll Offices by April 22 (Friday) in order to go into effect by May 1. Payroll Offices are:
