OBSERVANCE FOR A SPRING AFTERNOON

Ever since February crowds had gathered to watch the making of McDermott Court and its striking centerpiece, Alexander Calder's "The Big Sail." On May 7, with the work completed, the court was formally dedicated before an audience of nearly 300, including Mr. and Mrs. Eugene McDermott as guests of honor. It was an auspicious occasion on which the sun shone brightly.

Earlier in the week, a time capsule containing items representative of our times was buried beneath the stable. Weighing 150 pounds, the capsule was the work of Professors Shrock and Edgerton who collected nearly forty enclosures for it, including: a Sears, Roebuck catalog, lead and copper plates bearing the alphabet and numerals, electronics components, a variety of Institute publications, and a plastic beaver. Mrs. McDermott controlled the electric hoist which lowered the capsule, and Mr. McDermott ceremonially closed the cavity in which it awaits a future generation.

IN MEMORIAM

The sudden death of Professor William H. Radford on May 9, brought to a close a thirty-five year association with the Institute. After completing his studies at Drexel Institute in Philadelphia, Professor Radford came to MIT as a graduate student, and remained here throughout a career which began in 1932 as a research assistant and ended as Director of Lincoln Laboratory. He had been a faculty member in electrical engineering since 1941.

Professor Radford joined Lincoln when it was formed in 1951 and was the first head of its Communications and Components Division. In this capacity he was responsible for development of radio communications systems essential to the Dew Line and Sage systems, as well as the planning of the Millstone Hill facility. He became associate director of the Laboratory in 1957, and was appointed director in 1964.

Memorial contributions may be made to the Faculty Memorial Association, Inc., (Room 4-205) to support the Carlton E. Tucker awards for excellence in teaching in the Department of Electrical Engineering.

LOWELL INSTITUTE SCHOOL COMMENCEMENT

The sixty-second graduation exercises of the Lowell Institute School will be held on May 26 in Kresge Auditorium. Speaker for the occasion will be S. Blair Lent, a graduate in the class of '24, who is Deputy General Manager for Engineering and Operations of the MBTA. Professor Paul E. Gray, Associate Dean of Student Affairs, will present the greetings of MIT, and certificates will be given to the graduates by Dr. Ralph Lowell. The program begins at 8:30 p.m. and the public is invited to attend.

The Lowell Institute School Alumni Association will hold its annual dinner the following evening (May 27) in the Faculty Club, beginning at 5:30 p.m. Reservations for this occasion should be made by telephoning the Lowell Institute School Office, Ext. 4895.

EXAM TIME

Next Tuesday (May 24) CBS-TV will present another National Drivers Test. In this, the second of the series, viewers will be quizzed on an entirely new set of driving situations. A limited supply of test forms is available in the Safety Office (E19-251) on a first-come, first-served basis.

WELL FURNISHED

Large efforts, like MIT's Plan for Progress, are made successful through the cooperation of small groups of people, even individuals. One example of this was a quiet project putting to use some of the cast-off furniture the Institute has collected through the years.

Jobs Clearing House and Opportunities Industrialization Center, Inc., are agencies in Boston that specialize in finding jobs and providing training for members of minority groups. In getting started, both groups asked MIT, among others, for various pieces of office furniture and equipment. Volunteers of all kinds to help out with the programs the agencies operate are also being earnestly sought.

From all over the Institute and Lincoln Lab, the moving crew brought pieces of banged-up furniture to the shops in Daggett. Items too battered to be repaired were discarded, while salvageable pieces were stacked in the halls to await attention by carpenters, metal-workers and painters, as time permitted. Now, more than 30 pieces of refurbished furniture, attesting to the fine workmanship of MIT craftsmen, have gone to the new agencies--tangible evidence of the Institute's activity as a member of the President's Committee on Equal Employment Opportunity.

IRISH MUMMERY

Bagpipes and Irish songs and jigs help create the atmosphere of Dublin low society in the Community Players' production of "The Hostage" opening tonight in the Little Theatre in Kresge. Among those playing the questionable characters in Brendan Behan's play are Marie Philips

(Lincoln), Bernie Simmons (Microreproduction) and Dick Solomon (EE). Helping out with the production are Maury Lanman (IL), David Walden (Lincoln) and Barry Young (City Planning). Performances will be repeated May 20, 21, 25, 26, 27 and 28. Tickets, at $1.50, are available in the lobby of Bldg. 10 daily from noon to 2 p.m., or may be reserved at Ext. 2910.

AUTHOR! AUTHOR!

More than 140 authors were present to help the MIT Press celebrate its first Authors' Day, together with 100 others at a luncheon in the Sala de Puerto Rico on May 5. Sponsored jointly by the Press and the Coop, the day was a smashing success. The fair-like atmosphere in the book department of the Coop boosted book sales throughout the week, but on Authors' Day, book sales rose to three times the average daily total. Part of the reason may have been the grand total of 685 free MIT press paperbacks given to purchasers at the Authors' Day reception.

REMEMBRANCES

As the Institute's year draws swiftly to its close, so do the careers of many people who have been very important in making MIT what it is. Receptions and get-togethers have been arranged to honor several of these long-time friends.

Vice President Philip A. Stoddard will be master of ceremonies at the reception for President Stratton which will be held next Wednesday (May 25) afternoon from 4 to 6 in the lobby of Kresge. First as student, later as researcher and faculty member, and finally as administrator, Dr. Stratton has known hundreds of Institute employees during his 45 years here. The congratulations he has frequently extended to others with lengthy service will be returned to him at the reception by Mrs. Claire Edwardson of the Silver Club and Fred Broderick of the Quarter Century Club.

Professor Paul A. Chalmers, Advisor to Foreign Students since 1944, will be honored at an informal open house in the Sala de Puerto Rico on Tuesday (May 24) afternoon from 4 to 6. The individual counseling Prof. Chalmers has offered to thousands of foreign students has formed bonds of friendship for MIT throughout the world community that it serves. Everyone who has been associated with Prof. Chalmers is invited to attend.

On Friday, May 27, members of the Engineering Projects Lab staff will host a party in the Miller Room for Chester Babcock who will retire at the end of the month. Chester, now helping out a second generation of MIT students with their projects, is looking forward to a world cruise beginning sometime in June after 24 years at the Institute.

STARTING LINE -UP

Though the spring weather has been chilly, the spirits of the summer softball leagues are warm. The Instrumentation noontime league is already playing. Ralph Scholl, Ext. 2812, is rounding up teams, rosters and fees for the 12-team Institute evening league. Fees, for umpires and balls, are $35 per team. Deadline for registration is June 1. Note: also needed are umpires at $4 per game.
