Design for a typical Aisle Window in
The Church of the Mediator, New York.

This design suggests an articulated color scheme, to be varied somewhat throughout the six aisle windows - each window to be dominated by an eloquent symbol related to the development of Christianity, possibly including references to Old and New Testaments.

The scheme of pure color, whites and tinted whites, is designed to supplement, in gracious fashion, the windows now in place and the great east window designed from the text: "The Tabernacle of God is with men."
