General Information Saint Joan of Arc's vision, in the nature of the New York, St. John's Cathedral medallion, but lighter, and not so formal, more in harmony with the windows now in the Library at the Reformatory.

We have now completed the rough color sketch for the new Library window, and are sending it to you herewith.

As planned, we have symbolized courage and high purpose through the Vision of the young Shepherdess, Joan of Arc, as she kneels before the radiant vision of Saint Michael, inspiring her to fulfill her great mission.

This design is planned to suggest color and light in action, and all the exquisite detail of line and form, as you have seen it in the other windows, is left for development in the full size drawings and the actual glass.

The border and type of glass would harmonize with the others.
