General Information Whitehouse writes: "This window, being to the south, should be a rather dense window in its color, and a very simple sort of thing. I wouldn't say anything in the way of a figure in it, but perhaps some symbol, or symbolism..." - Use Descending Dove of the Holy Spirit."

See photostat of church showing location of the window.....

We have now completed our study of the design for the diamond shape window at the end of the nave in the Community Church at Coulee Dam.

As you see, we have symbolized the Descending Dove of the Holy Spirit. Although this is white it can be well held down with textures so that it will not be too strong in the south light. The blue field will help this.

I am not sure whether we have suggested too much detail. I think it depends a good deal on the height of the window from the floor, which we do not have.

The Dove could easily be larger, omitting some of the conventional cloud forms surrounding it. However, it is a fairly good size window and the scale should not be over-powering.
