Note, this window is somewhat shaded by the angle of the outer wall of from a position a ways up the nave; and this might be kept in mind when it is painted.

BE SURE THE NORTH AISLE WINDOWS ARE A LITTLE WARMER THAN THOSE ON THE SOUTH.

The fourth and last window is devoted to Moses, who bears the Tablets of the Commandments with the brazen serpent raised on the staff as the symbol below. At the left he kneels before the vision of God in the Burning Bush; and, at the right, he receives the Commandments on Mount Sinai. The alternating color scheme of ruby and blue medallions and figures is carried through this group in pleasant harmony of contrast.
