General Information The larger one to have the symbol of the Open Bible.

The smaller one the fish or crossed fishes, implying the Crucifixion.

~~Their present windows are very cheap - a combination of hammered cathedral and opalescent - a symbol in each one - and just the name.~~

They are both in memory of Louis Cobb, who taught Sunday School and was a great help at the Church. The larger transom is over the left entrance and the smaller transom over the right entrance - as you look at the church from the outside.

Blue backgrounds - ruby borders -
The one with the open Bible and flames of Religious zeal to have lettering indicated on the Bible, without it being actual lettering -
